Facility Snapshot/Description

The Rolling Plains Detention Center is located in Haskell, Texas, approximately 180 miles west of the Dallas/Fort Worth (DFW) International Airport and 57 miles north of Abilene, Texas. Haskell, Texas, is a small rural town with a population of 3,322 residents as reported by the 2010 census. The facility is owned and operated by LaSalle Corrections with headquarters in Ruston, Louisiana, and offices in Dripping Springs, Texas. The facility houses both male and female detainees of all custody levels for ICE, the U.S. Marshals Service (USMS), and Haskell County. The facility was opened in 2002

The facility is a single-story structure which contains fifty housing units; 45 general population housing units with dorm beds and five single cell housing units used for special management. During the inspection, one of the single cell units housed general population female ICE detainees. Of the 45 general population dorms, nineteen house ICE detainees. Capacities of the dorms housing ICE detainees range from eight beds to 24 beds. ICE detainees do not commingle with non-ICE detainees. All supervision of detainees is indirect by roving officers and supplemented by cameras located in all housing units, hallways, and common areas of the facility.

Each general population housing unit is equipped with a television, board games, and telephones at a ratio of one per every eight detainees. Detainees may also check out a tablet on which, at no charge, they may communicate with various facility staff and submit grievances and sick call requests. For a fee, detainees may send and receive emails with persons of their choosing, and download music, movies, and television shows. Detainees housed in the general population have access to one of the facility's two indoor gyms and one of the three large outdoor recreation yards. Overall, the team found the atmosphere in the facility to be calm with no obvious indicators of high stress. Sanitation was observed to be average. ICE detainees do not participate in the voluntary work program.

All of the housing units and common areas of the facility used by ICE detainees were visited and/or observed during the inspection. A fire drill was conducted and observed on the last day of the inspection.

Numerous detainees were interviewed; some interviews were with individuals and small groups of detainees in housing units and common areas and several were private and confidential and included detainees with limited English proficiency (LEP). The interviews with LEP detainees were facilitated by use of a telephonic translation service. Interviews included detainees who had recently arrived at the facility and some who had been housed at the facility for longer periods of time. Without exception, detainees voiced no concerns regarding life/safety issues. Detainees stated they felt safe and were very satisfied with the interaction, responsiveness and professionalism of facility and ICE staff and with access to medical services, mail, the law library, telephones, visitation and recreation. Detainees expressed general satisfaction with the quantity and quality of food provided.

Several female ICE detainees from China were interviewed via the Language Line. The detainees stated they were unable to call their families in China; each time they attempted to place a call it would disconnect before the party they were calling answered. Detainees from other countries who were interviewed stated they were able to call their home countries. This issue was referred to the OIC for follow-up with the telephone vendor.

The facility does not charge co-pays for medical, mental health or dental care. Medical care, food services and commissary are provided by LaSalle Corrections. Detainee telephone services are provided via a contract with Correct Solutions Group.
